Your Submitted Press Release

Phoenix, AZ – April 17, 2025 – Canyon Pain Center, a Phoenix-based provider of multidisciplinary pain management services, has officially begun accepting Personal Injury and Workman's Compensation cases. This expansion, effective April 1, 2025, reflects the organization's commitment to supporting individuals recovering from car accidents and workplace injuries throughout Arizona.

Dr. Patricia Sullivan, MD, MPH, a physician with board certification in Occupational and Preventive Medicine, leads the new service offering. Dr. Sullivan comprehensively understands injury-related care, including diagnostic protocols, treatment coordination, and case documentation. Her prior work includes leadership roles in clinical oversight, case reviews, and return-to-work assessments across various healthcare systems.

"Personal injury and workers' compensation cases involve unique clinical and administrative complexities," said Dr. Sullivan. "Our goal is to help patients navigate the medical aspect of these challenges with clarity and coordination."

With this expansion, Canyon Pain Center offers injury assessments, interventional procedures, therapy planning, and referrals to specialists such as neurosurgeons when required. These personal injury services at Canyon Pain Center complement the clinic's established expertise in managing chronic pain and musculoskeletal conditions. By integrating Phoenix personal injury care into its core offerings, the center seeks to provide more streamlined and responsive medical support for affected individuals.

To serve Arizona's culturally diverse population, the clinic continues to offer bilingual services. All patient communications and care coordination are available in both English and Spanish, improving access and understanding for Spanish-speaking residents. This language-inclusive model supports Canyon Pain Center's goal of equitable care across all demographics.

Founded in 2017, Canyon Pain Center is recognized for its personalized approach to pain management and rehabilitation. The clinic provides care for a wide range of conditions, including trauma-related injuries, chronic musculoskeletal disorders, and postoperative pain. Services are designed to be patient-centered, with an emphasis on evidence-based treatments and interdisciplinary collaboration.

The organization is overseen by CEO Steven Spiegel, who also leads Valley Wellness Center, a separate primary care facility focused on preventative health and family medicine. Together, these healthcare entities offer comprehensive support for individuals navigating both acute injuries and ongoing health needs.

The inclusion of Personal Injury and Workman's Compensation cases reflects Canyon Pain Center's ongoing efforts to adapt to the evolving healthcare landscape and meet patient demand. With experienced clinical leadership, robust service capabilities, and a commitment to accessibility, the center is positioned to become a key provider of injury care in the region.
