Hong Kong S.A.R., 23rd Oct 2025 – GCC Green Concept Control announced the rollout of its 100% pet-safe pest control services across Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan, marking a regional expansion of its environmentally conscious pest management operations. The company's new service utilizes "Graciol X," a proprietary pesticide developed and tested to ensure safety for household animals.

Dr. Gracia Chan

According to the company, the formulation of Graciol X was led by Dr. Chan Koon Ming Gracia, who confirmed that the product has passed the Animal Acute Oral Toxicity Test conducted by STC (Hong Kong Standards and Testing Centre). The results of the test indicated no adverse effects on animals during laboratory assessment.

The new service is designed to provide pest control without requiring pets to leave their environment during the treatment process. GCC Green Concept Control reports that Graciol X has been evaluated for safety across various species, including dogs, cats, birds, rabbits, fish, reptiles, and small mammals. The announcement follows years of research into chemical alternatives that align with both public health and animal safety standards.

Dr. Chan stated that the company's vision is to create a safer living environment for both people and animals. "Every home deserves effective pest control that doesn't endanger pets," said Dr. Chan. "Graciol X was developed with this purpose, ensuring protection without requiring pets to leave their homes during treatment."

The company emphasized that the development and application of Graciol X comply with regulatory testing requirements and industry safety benchmarks. By extending these services to multiple regions in Asia, GCC Green Concept Control seeks to standardize pet-safe pest control practices across residential and commercial sectors.

Details regarding the testing process, including documentation from STC, have been made publicly accessible through the company's online channels. For more information about the product and its testing report, please visit <https://gcc.com.hk/en/pages/graciol-x>.

The launch represents a formal introduction of pet-safe pest control in regions where household animal ownership continues to rise. The company stated that additional regional service rollouts are under review, with a focus on safety validation and transparent communication of test results.
