LiberLive, known for pioneering the stringless smart guitar technology, is set to introduce its groundbreaking LiberLive C1 Stringless Smart Guitar at CES 2025, marking the company's first appearance at the world's largest technology trade show.

As the world's first-ever stringless smart guitar, LiberLive C1 is a revolutionary musical instrument that redefines how music is created. Designed with advanced technology, LiberLive C1 features innovative paddles that replace traditional guitar strings, enabling players of all skill levels to effortlessly produce full chords and complex sounds. Featuring advanced MicroDAW Sampling Technology, Frequency Simulation Technology, and pressure-sensitive paddles, it delivers an authentic and dynamic audio experience. Seamlessly integrated with the LiberLive App, the C1 offers programmable custom chords, multi-instrument capabilities, and real-time visual cues for effortless play. With its patented foldable design, built-in speakers, and long battery life, the LiberLive C1 combines cutting-edge innovation with portability, setting a new standard for tech-driven musical instruments.

"We're excited to introduce a product that is as accessible as it is revolutionary," says Vincent Tang, the founder of LiberLive, "The LiberLive C1 is about making music more intuitive and inclusive, providing everyone with the opportunity to connect with music."

Since its founding in 2019, LiberLive has remained committed to one core mission: to connect people with music in innovative and meaningful ways. The launch of the LiberLive C1 Stringless Smart Guitar marks a major step forward in the company's commitment to transforming how people learn, play, create, and perform music.

LiberLive's participation at CES 2025 marks a significant step in its global growth strategy. By exhibiting at the world's leading consumer electronics trade show, the company hopes to reach a broader audience. The LiberLive C1, with its intuitive design and innovative features, is expected to appeal not only to traditional guitar players but also to a wider audience that is looking for new ways to express themselves through music.

At CES 2025, attendees will have the opportunity to experience the LiberLive C1 firsthand at Booth #63518 in the Venetian Expo Hall G (Eureka Park), from January 7-10, 2025. Each day from 2-3 pm, LiberLive will host live "Strum & Show" sessions, where the company will demonstrate the LiberLive C1's groundbreaking features in real-time. Visitors will be able to try the LiberLive C1 Stringless Smart Guitar and explore its range of features, which combine advanced technology with a user-friendly design aimed at making music creation fun, accessible, and innovative.

The debut of the LiberLive C1 at CES 2025 promises to make waves in both the music and technology communities.
