Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil, 13th Sep 2024 - SafetyMails, a specialist in validating and verifying email bases, has just released a new free tool that promises to help sales professionals when sending commercial emails. The tool, available on the company's website, is simple to use and allows anyone to quickly check whether an email address is valid or not.

Ensuring that messages reach the right recipients has become essential for companies of all sizes. Email verification is a critical step in this process, as it prevents emails from being sent to non-existent or invalid addresses, which can damage the company's reputation and even affect the deliverability rate of future campaigns.

SafetyMails' new tool enables real-time verification of email addresses, helping to identify potential errors before they are even sent.

According to Priscila Gonçalves, CEO of SafetyMails, "SafetyMails' mission is to ensure that marketing and sales professionals have access to solutions that can increase the effectiveness of their campaigns. With the new free email verification tool, we want to provide an accessible resource for everyone."

In addition to verifying individual emails, SafetyMails offers more robust solutions for validating large email lists, which can be of great value to companies working with large-scale campaigns.

The tool is now available for free. Access the Free Email checker tool.
